GRAHAM WILL NOW RECOVER

Discouraged Farmer Who Sought
Self Destruction, Able to Eat
His Dinner at Table.

DEED CAREFULLY PLANNED

Graham Sent Colored Boy Away and Told Him to Return in Fifteen Minutes.

Bruce Graham, the farmer-horseman who tried to kill himself yesterday afternoon by hanging was able to dress and be around today, eating dinner with his family at the table at noontime. He still suffers with a pain in his neck where the heavy rope choked him. At no time today did he come to the realization of what transpired yesterday. He seems to be in a daze and apparently has no recollection of the horrible deed he tried to execute. Once this morning he walked to the mirror and looking into it, felt his neck saying:

"I can't figure out what is the matter with my neck. It seems to hurt me."

Some there are who believe that he is mentally unbalanced. Possibly the shock from the half successful rash act and the tortures he suffered for several hours after being cut down, has something to do with his mental condition at this time.

From the detail outlined in the note he left for his wife it shows that he was not insane when he planned the suicide. A feeling of depression, such as he experienced on account of not being able to raise some money to meet pressing financial obligations, might have caused him to become temporarily insane but the circumstances surrounding the last moves made just before he went into the loft to die as he planned, discredits this theory.

The colored lad, Naman Morrison, who works for Graham, had a premonition for several days that his employer contemplated some rash act. And when the boy went up into the loft he fully expected to make the ghastly find that met his eyes. Graham returned from this city yesterday afternoon after a fruitless endeavor to raise $200, and was in a melancholy mood. He told Morrison to take a colt and graze it down the road near the furniture factory and to stay there at least fifteen minutes. He said he would go up and throw down the hay for the horses and told Morrison that when he returned from grazing the colt to come up into the loft and assist him with some work he had to do there. Morrison believed then that some dreadful thing was going to happen but he thought he would not be justified in sounding any alarm. He took the colt down the road as directed but worried all the time he was gone and did not stay the fifteen minutes as directed by Graham. He returned to the barn lot and debated a minute or more about going up into the loft. The colored boy called to Graham's thirteen-year-old son Earl and asked him to go up and assist his father. The son had other chores to do and declined. It was then that Morrison summoned courage, and went into the loft only to find that his fears were justified and well-founded.

Morrison and Harry McFarlan, who helped him cut down the fast strangling man, were naturally excited as they set about the task. The rope was an inch thick and was used in lifting hay Morrison had to cut the rope twice as Graham had made a loop knot. Had the two acted more coolly about the matter they could have lifted the supposed dying man up and out of the noose in a few seconds, for McFarlan held him up while Morrison cut the rope. But they are to be congratulated that they took immediate action and Graham owes his life to them.

The bulk of the indebtedness which moved Graham to such a deed were small bills which he owed to merchants about Rushville. Several of them were pressing him for payment and his failure to raise a few hundred dollars caused him to feel so deeply humiliated that he decided to end it all by shuffling off this mortal coil.

But his plans were frustrated and his funeral, as arranged, will not be held tomorrow. Many of his friends are now saying they would have gladly assisted him and rendered him financial aid to tide him over if they had known he was in such dire financial straits.

RURAL CARRIERS VERY BUSY MEN

256,232 Pieces of Mail Handled by Local Rural Routers in Three Months.

MOST CARRIED ON ROUTE ONE

With Route Eleven a Close Second—
Both Are Classed as Banner Routes.

For the past three months the rural route carriers all over the United States have been counting the number of pieces of mail handled, because of an order from the post office department at Washington. The first of June the carriers were supposed to send in their report which is given in the table below. This is done often by the department to find out the business done by the rural routes. The largest number of pieces of mail were handled on route one, which shows a total 27,754 with route eleven a close second with 26,471 pieces. These two routes are classed as banner routes, since any route handling over 25,000 pieces in the three months is placed in this class. As seen in the tables below the largest number of money orders were sold on route ten and the value of stamps and stamped paper sold was greatest on route six.

The following table gives the number of pieces of mail matter delivered by each of the twelve routes out of Rushville, and the number of pieces collected and brought back for mailing, and the last column gives the total number of pieces of mail matter handled by each carrier:

	Del.	Col.	Hand'd
Route 1	24698	3056	27754
Route 2	18914	2718	21632

LAMB BUSINESS IS ON.

The lamb business has opened up on the Richmond division of the Pennsylvania lines and from now on through the season there will be a series of record breaking train runs. Traffic consists of small lambs which are raised on the sheep farms in Kentucky and are taken to the Union stock yards at Chicago for sale there. The lambs are loaded in Louisville in the evening and before 9 o'clock the next morning they are placed on sale at the stock yards in the best of shape.

ARE LAUNCHED TO ANCHOR, WHERE?

Thirty Young Men and Women Now
Stand in the Dawn of a New Life.

EQUIPPED FOR ALL BATTLES

Dr. W. S. Bovard Delivered Address to Graduating Class Last Night
—Replete With Good Advice.

Once again has the high school of this city accomplished its purpose and once more a handsome class of well equipped young men and women have quitted the school room. They are to commence the battle with the sterner realities of life with all its prospects, its care and worries. They have launched upon life's turbulent stream, but where will they anchor? This question is a serious one and each member of the classes that annually pass from the guiding influence of teacher and school room must sometime in the future life give response.

They step forth in the world today free from the tentacles of a Rushville school course. Some doubtless are rejoicing, yet there is a feeling of regret in the hearts of all for the many daily pleasant hours that have passed into history.

In a respective mood many live again through the years of a school course, and realize better now than ever before, that the crisis has arrived, the time for action is at hand, as their acts from now on will, little by little mould the future. The years of training that has equipped them for this time, stand forth in prominent detail as they accept the situation to go forth into the world as man and woman to take up and fight their battles alone.

Dr. W. S. Bovard, president of Moores Hill college, delivered the commencement address last night to a large audience in the Main Street Christian church. The main topic throughout his lecture was the benefits to be derived in after life from the building of a good foundation. His remarks were full of good and lasting advice for the young high school student, who is now to take up the battles in life. Dr. Bovard emphasized the fact that what an individual says and does is not taken into consideration so much as the moral character which stand behind the man.

Too much stress cannot be placed upon the character building and the lecturer did not fail to point this out to the young men and women. The broader the foundation and the higher the aims the greater the character will be. And the building of a deep and solid foundation could be obtained in no way except by the educational route. Dr. Bovard used the life of a farmer lad who had achieved success and is now the associate professor of economics in Harvard University as an example of the benefits to be derived from higher education. He urged the graduates not to despair obtaining a college training and even higher than that the post graduate course in the university was not impossible.

Dr. Bovard likened the building of the character to the building of a battle ship. How each separate part was tested to its full extent and if it could not stand the strain was cast aside to make room for the better. So it is with the student, who in his young days is building the foundation upon which he is to stand and by which he will be known in after life. Those who cannot stem the tide are swept overboard and washed away by the waves and the individual with the strong, broad foundation and the good character moves up to take his place.

During the course of his remarks the speaker made reference to the cigarette which in his opinion was never better named than by the term "coffin nail." He warned the young man who was starting out in life with the intention of making a success against the excessive use of the poison. As his last words of advice to the class Dr. Bovard said to do their best with all their might all the time and success would certainly crown their efforts.

The musical numbers on the program were of the highest class. The several selections by Montani Brothers orchestra of Indianapolis were highly appreciated, the one number by the girl's high school glee club assisted by Miss Georgia Wyatt and Miss Hazel Lytle received rounds of applause.

The Teachers and Their Vacation

The "school daze" is over too.

Cupid will now get busy and tutor some of the school marm's during the summer season.

Yes, and besides having the most beautiful cemetery in the State we also have the best looking coterie of school teachers to be found anywhere.

When the gong taps at the close of another school year one or two, or maybe three of the local teachers will be found sending out post cards from Hymen's Station.

The three R's will be relegated to storage for the next few months.

Miss Olive Traylor, teacher of English, left today for Jasper to spend her vacation with homefolks.

Miss Anna Marlott, teacher Latin, went to Connersville for a brief visit and will spend her summer vacation at Winona.

Prof. and Mrs. M. R. McDaniels, principal and teacher of science, will go to Rio Grande, Ohio, Monday, accompanied by his wife to visit his parents. He will spend the summer at Chicago University.

Prof. W. A. Stockinger, teacher of history and mathematics, will attend the summer session at Indiana University.

Miss Helen McNitt, teacher of German and history, will go to Vassar college where one of her sisters will be graduated next week. She will spend the summer at her home in Logansport.

Miss Nelle Bigham will spend the summer at Indiana University. The Bigham's will occupy a fraternity house at Bloomington.

Miss Ellen Madden will attend Normal at Marion.

Miss Teo Holden will attend Tri-State Normal at Angola.

Miss Nina Ford will attend Normal at Marion.

Miss Cora Smith will go to Indiana State Normal at Terre Haute.

Miss Edith Hiner will visit the Seattle exposition and tour the west.

TOLLEY A QUEER DUCK INDEED

Young Man Arrested Here For Passing
Fraudulent Check, Has a
"Dark Past."

SKINNED HIS BENEFACTOR

And Made a Practice of Fraud—May be Sent to the Reformatory Now.

An interesting story concerning the life of Robert Tolley, the young man arrested here Thursday by City Marshal Price, is told in the Connersville Examiner. The story follows:

"The probability is that Robert Tolley will serve a term in the Jeffersonville reformatory. The young man is no doubt guilty of forging the check which he passed on Landlord Owen at the McFarlan hotel Thursday morning, but there is a question as to whether the State will be able to prove it. In order to prove the false signature it will be necessary for Mr. Rice, whose signature was forged, to come here and so testify. If Mr. Rice does not do this the State will be without the proper witness in the case and Tolley will be released, though guilty of the crime.

It seems that Tolley was raised by Mr. Rice, who is a wealthy man, residing on a farm fifteen miles out of Cincinnati. It is said that Tolley has imposed on his benefactor considerably and passed a number of fraudulent checks. Rice has acknowledged these checks in order to keep Tolley out of the penitentiary but it is said that he has notified Tolley that he will never do it again.

Tolley returned the $45 to Owens, but this does not relieve him of his crime of passing the fraudulent paper. If Rice, however, refuses to aid in the prosecution Tolley will go free. Tolley's hearing is set for Friday evening in 'Squire Cates' court.

Tolley has a brother at Dayton and he was communicated with by Owen this morning by telephone. The Dayton man said that he would not assist his brother now. He said that he paid a thirty dollar bill at Richmond a short time ago when his brother got in bad with the Singer Sewing Machine Company, and that he would not help him again. He said he could go to the penitentiary first.

Tolley's brother arrived Friday afternoon from Dayton.

Mr. Rice telephoned this afternoon that the check is a forgery. The check has been sent into the Cincinnati bank for collection. After it is returned it will be evidence enough against Tolley to convict him.

The offense is punishable by a prison sentence or a fine.

Tolley's hearing has been continued until Saturday.

Commandments Revived

A Chicago man who has a large number of employes under him has posted up in the various departments of his establishment cards which bear the following terse rules. These make it plain what he expects and what he does not expect of those who draw salaries from him.

Rule I.—Don't lie—It wastes my time and yours. I am sure to catch you in the end, and that's the wrong end.

Rule II.—Watch your work and not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short, and a short day's work makes my face long.

Rule III.—Give me more than I expect and I'll pay you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.

Rule IV.—You owe so much to yourself that you can not afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt or keep out of shop.

Rule V.—Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, can't see temptation when they meet it.

Rule VI.—Mind your own business and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.

Rule VII.—Don't do anything which hurts yourself respect. The employe who is willing to steal for me is capable of stealing from me.

Rule VIII.—It's none of my business what you do at night. But if dissipation affects what you do the next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll last half as long as you hoped.

Rule IX.—Don't tell me what I'd like to hear but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet to my vanity, but I need one for my dollars.

Rule X.—Don't kick if I kick—if you're worth while correcting you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of the rotten apples.

TELLS COURT AN AMAZING STORY

Fort Wayne Man Says He Was Persecuted.

UNION HOUNDED HIM, HE SAYS

On Trial For Wife Desertion, Charley

Gebauer, a Member of the Brewery

Workers' Union, Tells the Court

That He Was Driven Away From

Home In Search of Employment and

That Persecution of His Union Followed Him Wherever He Went.

Ft. Wayne, Ind., June 5.—Charles Gebauer told the circuit court an amazing story of persecution from his union, composed of brewery workers, at his trial. He said that he is a member of Battery B of this city, and that for this reason he encountered the enmity of the leaders, who are opposed to the state having any national guard, and will not admit any person to their craft who is a member of a military organization. The union, he said, had driven him in his desperation to leave his family, although he did not wish to do so. He said he was compelled to leave to get employment, but he found that the union leaders still pursued him and caused him to be refused employment wherever he went, in Denver and other cities where he sought work. He was expelled from the union and could find no work at his trade anywhere. He returned to this city a week ago and was arrested for wife desertion by the humane officer. His wife told her story amid tears, trying to minimize the treatment she had received. The court took the matter under advisement.

CALLS OLD MAN IMPOSTOR

Octogenarian Who Has Traveled World Over Applies to Masons.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 5.—Charles W. Borden, eighty years old, who has traveled in all parts of the world, was arrested here when Dr. Elmer E. Smythe, acting secretary of the Masonic relief board, accused him of being an impostor. The man said he belonged to a chapter of the fraternity in Emboden, Orange Free State, South Africa, was in good standing, but had nothing to show for his membership.

Dr. Smythe glanced at his visitor, then called the police, as he remembered reports the board had received concerning such a "member" during the last ten years. He said the lodge heard from the man in various parts of the United States and different countries and at all times he endeavored to obtain money under one excuse or another. At the city prison Borden insisted a great harm was done him since he could "talk" Masonry and thereby establish his relationship.

Refused to Accept Advice.

Evansville, Ind., June 5.—Eight of the leading business men and manufacturers of Evansville appointed by the four commercial bodies of this city reported that the strike against the street railway company was not justified and urged the men to accept the company's proposition and return to work. The carmen refused to accept the advice, and it means that the situation is more acute than ever unless the public uses the cars. Every car owned by the company is being operated on schedule time, but the people decline to ride.

Brothers Reunited.

Princeton, Ind., June 5.—A strange meeting of brothers took place here when Lewis Oliphant, fifty-three years old, stopped off to make some inquiries about his mother, whom he had not seen in thirty years. He was directed to J. A. ("Hank") Oliphant, and by a chance mention of their mother's maiden name the two brothers learned their relationship. J. A. Oliphant was born after the elder brother had left home. The mother died some years ago.

Alamo's Chief Store Burned.

Crawfordsville, Ind., June 5.—The general store of Etter & Allen, at Alamo, ten miles west of here, was burned as the result of being struck by lightning. The loss is about $12,000, with $6,000 insurance. It was the only store of any size in Alamo.

Dies in an Omnibus.

Madison, Ind., June 5.—Mrs. Thomas Tullis, aged twenty-eight years, fell dead in an omnibus when on her way to take a train for New Albany. Her husband and three children were with her.

Jailed For Contempt.

Petersburg, Ind., June 5.—Mrs. Laura Good, who refused to testify against her husband, charged with murder, alleging that she would by so doing incriminate herself, was sentenced to jail for sixty days for contempt of court.

Wouldn't Face Lawsuit.

Greencastle, Ind., June 5.—Despondent because of a threatened lawsuit, Frederick H. Starwalt, age seventy years, committed suicide by hanging.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indecate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WAITED IN VAIN FOR DIRECTORS' MEETING

How F. Augustus Heinze Outwitted the Marshals.

New York, June 5.—In an effort to subpoena the new directors of the United Copper company, whom F. Augustus Heinze practically elected on Wednesday, a squad of United States marshals remained at the offices of the company nearly all day Friday with the understanding that there was to be a meeting. Late in the afternoon the federal officers became weary, and then it was learned the directors had outwitted them and held a meeting elsewhere, just where is not known. Other developments in the case included the appearance of Sanford Robinson, a former director, before the grand jury with the idea of clearing himself of contempt of court, with which he was threatened for refusing to reveal the whereabouts of the missing books, the basis of all the present trouble. What information Robinson volunteered concerning the whereabouts of the books could not be learned, but United States District Attorney Wise indicated that he would have them in the near future.

With the books in the hands of the federal authorities the investigation into the affairs of the Mercantile National bank, which failed during the panic of 1907, will be gone into and F. Augustus Heinze's transactions will be cleared up. His apparent effort to checkmate such a move has caused the present mixup.

Sociability

Frank J. McIntyre, playing "THE TRAVELING SALESMAN," Gayety Theatre, New York, has just written a new song that would bring cheer to the heart of a mummy. He calls it "SOCIALITY." This is the song that we give our readers this week. It is the "assassination of sorrow," as Mr. McIntyre would say. Everybody is singing it.

Mr. McIntyre, who has made such a pronounced success this season as the "TRAVELING SALESMAN," like many other leading players, has a side of his work of which the general public has heretofore unfortunately known little, for, aside from laugh-provoking powers as a comedian, Mr. McIntyre is a musician of no mean ability.

Before adopting the stage as a profession, Mr. McIntyre studied piano and musical composition in the conservatories in Ann Arbor, Mich., and at one time directed one of the largest singing societies in Michigan, composed of over a hundred voices, and it was then thought that he would become one of the most prominent directors in the country, and those who knew him then were as greatly surprised to learn of his success as a comedian as his present admirers will be to learn of his musical ability and distinction as a song writer.

The air of geniality and good-fellowship so much a part of this big comedian is shown in the song "SOCIALITY" that will be published in our columns this week. Don't miss it.

For Woman's Eye.

The hat of medium size with its left brim turned back so as to produce the longest possible line from back to front, is one of the newer models that is receiving a good deal of attention now by those who are preparing hats for the resorts. It is especially pretty in the lingerie materials.

A soft yellow cashmere is charmingly made up as a house or tea gown, a negligee affair for one's room or even a loose kimona. Black, soft golden brown, green—there are several colors which can be used in moderation with lace to give character to such a garment.

Coats are lined with fancy silks or rather silks in fancy colorings. The pink of healthy cheeks is very much enhanced by a soft gray or creamy colored cloth suit from the coat of which peeps a pink silk linen as it falls open.

It seems probable that the taste for soutache braid is to live for a long while.

A novel bracelet is of three very slender gold bands, about one-half inch apart, with a gold tiger's head on the upper part of the bracelet, which, of course, would come on the outside of the arm. The tiger's eyes and teeth are of tiny glittering diamonds.

An attractive automobile wrap is of pale wistaria rajah, gracefully artistically draped, with a most becoming hood of rajah trimmed inside with frills of soft white lace, from which wee pink roses peep forth alluringly.

In spite of their tremendous run, buttons are still good style, especially when they are of pearl and worked into the embroidery scheme of the costume.

Feathers are being more liberally employed.

While black does not figure in costumes so freely as it did last fall and winter, it is every whit as prominent in trimmings and little touches of accessories.

Lapels are shown on nearly everything.

Square buttons are a bit unusual and come in jet and pearl.

Smart Tips For Men

Narrow sleeves, finished with three buttons and rounded points at the vents, are prescribed for dress coats.

Perpendicular buttonholes in the lapels of the coats will be worn in the fall.

Embroidery neckwear is being worn in the popular colors of the season.

Soft pleated shirts are popular for wear with the dinner jacket.

Panama hats, the rims of which have black ribbon around the edges, are being displayed. Others with a zigzag stripe through the band are popular.

To accompany the evening jacket a collar of pique to match the bosom and cuffs of the shirt is popular.

In London a dress coat without any front waist seam is being worn and the front all of one piece.

Extensively assortments of tan half hose are being exhibited, the favorite tone being cinnamon.

Solid colors are being worn in neckwear. Open-end scarfs are also being worn.

LONG ON ROOSEVELT HUNT.

Well Known Naturalist Calls "Whole Bloody Business" Brutalizing.

Dr. William J. Long, the former minister and naturalist, whose writings were bitterly attacked by Theodore Roosevelt, talked recently about Mr. Roosevelt's African hunting trip.

Dr. Long declares the worst feature of the whole business is the brutalizing influence which the reports from Africa have on thousands of American boys.

"In one dispatch I notice that when he could not find buffaloes he had to content himself by shooting wart hogs and other inoffensive creatures. As the buffaloes are fast disappearing from Africa and as Mr. Roosevelt had already killed several, why in the name of science should he go out to kill more, and why, falling to find buffaloes, should he content himself by slaughtering other creatures?"

"The whole thing is atrocious. It is exactly like his own record of killing eleven bull elk on one trip and then, on his way out, killing two more that he found fighting. Their meat was unfit to use and was left in the woods. Then he preached to us on the virtue of game protection, and when he comes back from this trip you will hear his righteous dissertation on the necessity for preserving game in Africa, of course, after he has killed everything he could find.

"The only thing we will get out of the much heralded trip will be some more hunting yarns, almost as veracious as Mr. Roosevelt's account of his heroic exploit at San Juan Hill, and some more skins and bones, of which we already have too many. The only one who will ever learn or teach anything of value is the man who studies the living animal, not the man who glazes over a dead one.

"The worst feature in the whole bloody business is not the killing of a few hundred wild animals in Africa, but the brutalizing influence which these reports have upon thousands of American boys.

"Only recently I met half a dozen little fellows in the woods. The biggest boy had a gun and a squirrel tail in his hat, and he called himself Bwana Tumbo. They were shooting everything in sight, killing birds at a time when every dead mother meant a nestful of young birds slowly starving to death. And how could I convince them that their work was inhuman? Is not the great American hero occupied at this time with the same detestable business? And why should not they also be heroic and make a few fine shots and content themselves with robins and rabbits since faunal naturalists and other game butchers have killed off all our buffaloes?"

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

THAT BERRY CROP.

(Greenfield Reporter.)

David Andrick, one of the best known and most successful gardeners of this county, said that the strawberry crop in Hancock county will be only about one-fourth an average crop. He said that it was the smallest crop that he had seen since he began to garden. The berries are late and small.

A MUSHROOM TALE.

(Knightstown Banner)

Charles Shook and family visited a few days since with relatives in Manilla, Rush county. While there he visited David Warfield, a former employer, and Mr. Shook was shown a huge mushroom which grew in the Warfield yard. It is 4 1/2 inches wide and 11 inches long and grew a stem several times the size of the ordinary mushroom. Mr. Warfield said that it had been growing four weeks.

A NEW ENEMY.

(Greenfield Reporter.)

On the farm of Dr. Earl Gibbs, in Green township, is a flowing well which is greatly damaging the corn field in which it is located. Several years ago when a gas well was drilled on the farm, a fine flowing well developed, but in the course of time the water ceased to flow. Since the recent rains it has burst forth in greater force than ever, and has been discharging such a large amount of water that the young corn in the field, in which the well is located, is badly damaged.

STRUCK GNAT SWARM.

(Columbus Republican.)

Gene Snyder, a rural mail carrier from the Columbus postoffice, had an experience with a swarm of "gnats" this week which demonstrated the all-around usefulness of an automobile.

Mr. Snyder uses an automobile for the purpose of delivering mail on his route and one day this week he was bowling merrily along one of the country roads when he noticed a small cloud of insects ahead of him and naturally supposed the vision to be a cloud of gnats. He started to plow through the cloud when he found to his chagrin that he had dived into the center of a swarm of bees. Now bees are equipped with a little contrivance by which they are able to make a lasting impression on any one who rubs the fur the wrong way and Mr. Snyder did not care to arouse any angry passions. He had struck the swarm so hard that hundreds of bees were crawling on his breast and over the front of his clothes. Something had done in a hurry and he was afraid to try to brush them off for fear they would take a notion to begin stinging him.

So the carrier hustled out of the machine, turned on the exhaust and stopped in the rear of the automobile. The exhaust was shooting out smoke at a great rate and with a great deal of force. Mr. Snyder stepped to where the exhaust would strike him squarely and let the automobile do the rest. The force of the engine swept every bee away as clean as if a giant electric fan had been brought into play. When the last bee had been blown away Mr. Snyder climbed into the machine and resumed his trip. "Stung," he cried at the swarm of bees as he again took up Uncle Sam's business.

GARDEN IN BUSY STREET.

Prominent Church Plans Beautification Feature For Its Centenary.

The Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, rector of Grace church, in New York, has hit upon a novel plan for commemorating this the hundredth year of the corporate existence of the church. His congregation indorses the plan. It is to transform into a garden the lot adjoining the church on the south, which has a frontage of fifty feet on Broadway and 110 feet on Tenth street. It was formerly the site of a well known bakery.

The lot was recently purchased by the church. The garden will be enclosed only with a low iron fence, so that the people living thereabout will get the benefit of it. It will provide a playground for the choir boys and a place for church entertainments.

Part of the Easter collection, which this year amounted to $40,000, will be used to complete the payment on the new lot, which, when it becomes a garden, will have as a background an ornamental wall, now almost completed, along the south wall of the church parallel with Tenth street. This wall the corporation has erected with the idea of shutting out from view the tall building in the rear. It is some thirty feet high.

Dr. Huntington said the garden will be a monument to the church and a welcome sight to the millions of people who annually pass the spot. It will also add to the appearance of the neighborhood.

"SINGING" WIRELESS DEVICE.

Musical Tones to Be Substituted For Vibrations Now Transmitted.

"Singing sparks" is the expressive name given to an improved wireless system recently perfected by a German wireless telegraphy company, says a Berlin dispatch. Messrs. Slaby and Arco, chief engineers of the company, have invented a device which, it is claimed, will entirely obviate the uncertainties with which other wireless systems have had to contend.

The new method consists in sending out the vibrations which form the messages as pure musical tones, which are capable of being heard by the receiver, no matter how softly they may be attuned. It is declared that by means of this device it will be possible for the first time since the wireless telegraphy was established to maintain communication by this means in spite of the most violent atmospheric disturbances. In their passage through the air the singing sparks will be entirely noiseless.

NATIONAL LABOR BUREAU.

The First of a Series of Offices Opened in New York.

The first bureau of the National Employment exchange, which was incorporated April 22 to solve the present day labor problems, was opened the other day at 14 State street, New York. Any man seeking manual labor will be free to enter his name without charge. Neither will it cost an employer anything to secure labor.

Those back of the exchange, who include a number of widely known and wealthy men, have raised $100,000 to further the project of obtaining employment for laborers who are really seeking work. The present plan is that after a man has been given work he shall pay the bureau $2. Later there may be a small fee for the employers. Bureaus in Chicago and Pittsburgh will be opened in a few days. Later bureaus will be established in Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Milwaukee and other cities through the middle west.

Our Want Ads Will Sell Any Thing.

Buy at Home-- Boost Rushville

The best way not to help Rushville is for everybody who can to spend his money in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis is a fine city. It is pleasant to make a trip there, and most people enjoy shopping and supplying their needs there.

But Rushville is a fine place also. We have stores dealing in every line of goods which compare very favorably with stores of like kind in Indianapolis or elsewhere. Anyway, there are few people in Rushville who cannot supply practically all their needs in the various stores open here for the accommodation of the public.

Abraham Lincoln once, when illustrating the principle upon which he believed home industries should be patronized, said that it was very evident that when we bought a ton of steel rails in England, we had the rails, but England had the money, and when we bought a ton of steel rails in this country, we had both the steel rails and the money. So if we buy goods in Indianapolis, Rushville has the money. But if we buy goods in our own city, Rushville has both the goods and the money. Even a blind person can see the best policy to pursue.

It is said that certain Rushville merchants and their families have been setting their customers a bad example in this respect.

It is reported by those who have been making observations that these merchants give their families money and that this money is taken by the wives and daughters to Indianapolis and spent for a line of goods which pater familias does not carry in stock, but which various others of his fellow merchants do.

One merchant is reported to buy his groceries of a Dayton firm.

Several merchants, not in the dry goods business, it is said, send their wives to Indianapolis to buy carpets, rugs, lace curtains and various lines of house furnishing goods.

Many wives of merchants buy suits and dresses in Indianapolis. Others, according to a local shoe man, buy their shoes in the capital city in preference to patronizing the home shoe store.

Even ladies engaged in business here for themselves are said to buy their personal wearing apparel away from here, at the same time demanding patronage of their sisters in their own exclusive line of trade.

In addition to this buying, it is reported that the wives and daughters of merchants who do this, openly boast of the bargains (?) they secure and advertise the city establishment receiving their patronage much to the chagrin of merchants carrying that line of goods in Rushville.

It is further said that a system of watching is being employed and all purchases by families of merchants are being reported and that

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Vice Admiral Uriu of the Japanese navy paid a pilgrimage to the tomb of George Washington, at Mount Vernon, and placed there a wreath of roses.

In view of the frequent disputes with dock laborers in recent years, another attempt is being made to form an international federation of ship-owners.

Great anxiety is felt at St. Johns, N. F., by shipowners and the relatives of the 300 men comprising the crews of twenty fishing schooners a week overdue.

W. T. Knox of California has been elected treasurer of the Seventh Day Adventists to succeed Elder I. H. Jones, who has completed four years' service in that office.

as a consequence much jealousy and soreness exists between home merchants on account of this loss of trade.

Of course this is a deplorable state of affairs. One prominent citizen was recently heard to declare that at least half of the goods purchased in Rushville were carried into it. We do not believe that it is so bad as this, but it is bad enough.

There is no denying the fact that many persons travel to the city and pay higher prices for goods than the same articles can be purchased for here. One example is cited by a local merchant, where a lady, after pricing a room rug at a local furnishing store, went to Indianapolis and paid $12.00 more for the same identical rug, besides her time and expense and cost of transportation for the goods. Numerous instances of the same kind might be cited.

Rents are higher in the city; help more expensive, and fashionable establishments charge a certain percent for the reputation of the place, which is never added in Rushville.

It is safe to say that almost invariably where persons are discovered boasting of bargains procured in Indianapolis, that if they could be persuaded to search the stores of Rushville, that articles of an equal quality, or better, could be purchased here for less money.

If you expect to be in Rushville and do business here, you have no right to demand trade from others and take your own elsewhere. Trade should be reciprocal. Rushville merchants should do everything they can to help and encourage each other. It is the only policy by which to build up a town. That is the reason we have been recently advocating in such strenuous terms the formation of a merchants' association or commercial club.

In such an association all such evils as here mentioned would be discussed and means adopted to overcome the same.

Of course, if the merchants dealing in a certain line of goods in Rushville does not keep a fresh and complete stock, and does not advertise his wares in the local papers, to let the people of Rush county know what he has, he can not complain if people go elsewhere to get what he does not keep. Rushville merchants must understand from now on that they have to compete with the merchants of Indianapolis.

But we do believe that the merchants of Rushville are up to date and progressive and thoroughly deserve our patronage.

Let's buy at home and keep our money in Rushville. Let's all be progressive and help each other. Say kind things about your neighbor and help build up his business all you can. Don't knock, but boost.

Let's all get together for the sake of good, old Rushville, the best and handsomest little city in the State.

JULIANA'S FIRST SALUTE.

Sergeant Rewarded For Presenting Arms to Holland's Little Princess.

While on guard the other morning at the gate leading from the palace garden at The Hague, Holland, into Molenstraat a sergeant of grenadiers observed the approach of a white perambulator pushed by a nurse. For five seconds he looked at the approaching vehicle; then, suddenly realizing that it was the little Princess Juliana, daughter of Queen Wilhelmina, taking her first airing, he came to attention and presented arms, although the princess slumbered on unconscious of the honor.

In the afternoon the sergeant was told by his colonel to repair to the palace in full uniform, as the prince consort wanted to speak to him. The prince told him that he had seen the salute from the window. He had noticed the soldier's moment of hesitation and subsequent salute and so presented him with a banknote to provide himself with a souvenir of the first salute to her royal highness Princess Juliana.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, June 5.—The announcement of Governor Marshall that he proposes to have the new public accounting board demand, at once, an inventory of the supplies in the hands of public officials, and that he will have the "salary grab" bills of the county officers' associations tested, has produced a noticeable effect throughout the state. Anxious inquiries are being received here from officials and ex-officials regarding the governor's plans. The governor himself is not sure how he is going to proceed, but he is dead set against the paying of fees to county officials on top of their salaries. The laws he wants tested were the ones passed in the last session of the legislature over the veto of Governor Hanly two years ago. These bills give the sheriffs their in-and-out fees and the clerks certain fees that they have been holding. The supreme court held against the sheriffs on the in-and-out fee matter, but they managed to get through with a bill that legalized that "grab." Governor Marshall insists, however, that the constitution provides that vetoed bills, vetoed after the legislature adjourns, shall be taken up at the next succeeding session. According to his view, these measures should have been considered at the special session. Because they were not, he holds them to be unconstitutional.

While many of the ex-clerks and ex-sheriffs will get their fees before the governor can have the law tested, he has the advantage, in a way, as the accounting board can send its field deputies into every county and discover just how much money the officials have taken down in fees. Then if they want to stand for the limelight and resist a test of the law the public will have knowledge of their transactions. During the last session the Republican machine politicians from Evansville and other large cities worked harder to push through the salary "grab" measures than they ever did fighting for their country. They labored here day and night until the bills were passed. They were aided in their work because there were many Republicans and Democrats who wanted to take a crack at Governor Hanly, and they did it by voting to pass the bills over his head. Probably no attempt would have been made to knock out their laws but for the enactment of the public accounting bill. The firm stand of the Democratic legislators, placing in the governor's hands the authority to make the appointments for the accounting board, has enabled the governor to make plans for cutting off a graft that has been worked for years. The new accounting board will meet here Monday; when plans for its work will be considered. It is expected that within the next three weeks field deputies will be at work in many counties going over the books and finding out where the leaks exist and how the people's money has been spent.

The executive committee of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association has decided on South Bend as the place of the summer meeting of the association. The invitation to meet there came from the South Bend Chamber of Commerce. The meeting will be the latter part of July. Notice of the exact date and arrangements in detail will be sent to every Republican newspaper in the state within a few weeks.

WIFE'S PREMONITION

Fatal Runaway Accident.

Newcastle, Ind., June 5.—B. Frank Bell, a well-known contractor of this city, about fifty years old, is dead from injuries received in a runaway. Mr. Bell was driving south in Main street when his horse frightened at a street car. Mr. Bell was thrown with great violence to the paved street, the skull being fractured.

SPIRIT OF BUNKER HILL

What Commemoration of the Historic Battle Means.

OF GREAT NATIONAL INTEREST

Wide Scope of the Conflict's Influence on a Great Nation—Graphic Picture of the Battlefield as It Was in 1775. Historical Landmark That Has Been Preserved to Posterity by Women.

Sooner or later every stranger who visits Boston invariably announces, "I must see Bunker Hill." June 17 is the ideal day to gratify that wish. To correctly entertain any guests a supply of luscious chicken and ham sandwiches should be taken, with plenty of pickles and a few pieces of pie, for Charlestown—accent on the "town," and pronounce it clearly, please—is within the "pie belt." We climb the stately pile on Bunker Hill, attend the exercises held by some historical association, listen to the strains of that old ode sung at the dedication of the monument in 1843, when Daniel Webster delivered his famous oration; behold the parade sweep in majesty about the foot of the historic pile and watch the sun flash in golden gleams on the renowned "Sword of Bunker Hill." Like many another historical landmark that otherwise would have been obliterated, Bunker Hill has been preserved to posterity by the devotion of women. Where today are well kept turf, a stately monument and joyous sight-seers, in 1775 a bare summit scarred by cannon shot, a raw, half sodden fieldworks and low redoubt overlooked the burning churches and houses of Charlestown. Beyond from the Charles river the British men-of-war joined the land batteries on the farther bank in the unceasing thunder of artillery, hurling death upon the men of Massachusetts Bay, Vermont and Connecticut.

Due north to the very verge of the Mystic ran a weak breastwork across pasture lands and meadows, with here and there an orchard-a-bloom with the delicate pink and white of apple, pear, cherry and quince, fields of yellow hearted, white petaled daisies swaying in the vortex of cannon shot and the mad rush of furious charges.

Among the orchards were full of red-coated, white gaitered infantry, the snow white daisies were marred by great splashes of life blood and the pastures strewn with patches of scarlet where soldiers in their gay uniforms had fallen to rise no more. To the left a half score of brass howitzers, posted amid brick kilns and clay pits, sought to enfilade and sweep away the Baymen who kept the hill.

Farmers, sailors, fishermen, tradesmen, clad in everyday garb, armed with their homely weapons of the chase, with scarcely a flag to fight under, suffering hunger, thirst and weariness under the broiling sun, coolly trained across the Bunker Hill breastwork the long, rusty tubes which had already heaped windrows of dead and dying men upon the fields below where the new mown hay still lay drying. The British lines continued to charge. "Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes!" The word passed along the line of set faces and leveled guns. A moment later hoarse cries, "Fire, fire!" rang out. A crash of triple volleys and the rattle of deadly file firing followed. The powder failed. The provincials broke away, pursued by Pitcairn's marines. For the moment our fathers' hope of victory was over.

Yes, visit Bunker Hill. Look upon a monument erected to cherish the memory of a defeat that brought success, for victory crowned the vanquished that day. The day set apart to commemorate the battle of Bunker Hill is exclusively a Charlestown holiday, but far wider than Boston's "triumphs" spreads the spirit of Bunker Hill throughout a great nation christened on that day in the red blood of American freemen. — Joe Mitchell Chapple in National Magazine For June.

Ice by Mail For Nevada Millionaire. Uncle Sam's ability to handle almost anything as mail matter was recently demonstrated when fifteen pounds of ice carefully wrapped in a rubber covering were forwarded to Dr. A. M. Miller of Hawthorne, Nev., the package being consigned to him by an ice company in Reno, Nev. It was very sultry in Hawthorne the other day, and Dr. Miller, who is a millionaire, longed for a cooling drink. He telegraphed for fifteen pounds of ice by mail. It was forwarded as requested, bearing many stamps. Eleven pounds were lost in transit.

Lake Champlain's Monument. The monument to commemorate the discovery of Lake Champlain by Samuel de Champlain is now spoken of as likely to be erected on Split Rock point, says a Burlington (Vt.) dispatch. The lake at that point is only about half a mile wide, but just to the north gradually broadens to its greatest width, fourteen miles. Those who favor the Split Rock site point out the fact that the monument, if erected there, would be in full view of all craft traversing the lake north or south and that a light placed at the top of the shaft would be visible for more than fifty miles in both direc-

CHARLEY HERNLY'S WORK AT BRAZIL

New Castle Man Has Made a Wonderful Showing With Never-Say-Die Company.

IT'S WHAT RUSHVILLE NEEDS

The showing made by C. S. Hernly in handling the lot sale for the Factory Club is truly wonderful in more ways than one says the Brazil News. In the first place Mr. Hernly was handicapped by the fact that the Factory Club has just previously sold three hundred lots in the rolling mill addition and it was thought that it was pointed out that as the mines ahead after this great campaign and equal the performance let alone entirely eclipse it. In the second place it was pointed out that as the mines were not working more than half time and this was a dull season generally the lots would naturally be very hard to dispose of. Mr. Hernly, who is imbued with that never-say-die spirit, was not in the least daunted by the prospects that confronted him in the undertaking and set to work at once for the complete success of the industrial movement. He had his committees scouring the city and even sent them out in the county to sell the farmers, where they were met by the very best success in selling nearly every farmer that the proposition was explained to. Dick Johnson was the banner township in this respect as a large number of lots were sold out there. No one had ever dreamed of interesting the farmers in a proposition of this kind until Mr. Hernly put the plan into operation and made it a complete success. Now that Greater Brazil is an assured fact let us all take off our hats to Mr. Hernly and give him the credit that is due him for pulling off one of the best industrial lot sales ever held in Indiana, and that too in the face of seemingly overwhelming odds.

SOCIETY NEWS

The biggest and most enjoyable society event of the season, and probably the most largely attended affair by out-of-town guests was the commencement dance given in the Modern Woodman hall last night. Over fifty couples were on the floor and the large crowd of onlookers comprising every garden variety of wall flowers formed a background for one of the most brilliant assemblages ever made up by the younger smart set in Rushville. The music by Farley's orchestra of Indianapolis was of the sort that inspires the young swain and the fair damsel with the spirit of the dance, as they glided along in the throes of the dreamy waltz or raced from one end of the dance hall to the other in keeping with the fiery two step. The crowd of young dancers began to grow smaller after the midnight hour and gradually diminished until only a few lingered, when dawn began to break and the birds began to announce the coming of another day. A large number of out-of-town guests were present among whom were:

Misses Ethel Sellers, Margaret Williams, Lucile Talbott, Vivian Hammond and Ralph Ragsdale, Henry Hemp, Joe Beckett, John Day, Cal Robertson, Martin Robertson of Indianapolis; Miss Ruth Vanorsdol of Shelbyville, Misses Margaret Holmes and Bernice Caldwell of Greencastle, Miss Jessie Edmunson of Oxford, O., Claude Bartlett of Lewisville; and Earl Welch, Will Doyle, Fred Hackman and Carl Tingle of Connersville.

The wedding of Miss Kathleen Sheed and Mr. Bruce Campbell, son of George Campbell of this city, will take place in the Presbyterian church in Winnipeg, Canada, next Wednesday evening. Bruce Campbell has been away from this city for several years and his many friends were surprised to hear of his entrance into the bonds of matrimony.

I Love My Wife—But Oh You
DEMME'S BOND.

Seventy Years Old.

Rheumatism and neuralgia yield their pain to Perry Davis' Painkiller—so do sprains, burns, bruises. It cures colds, colic, diarrhoea. For seventy years it has been doing good. If it's used early suffering is saved and danger avoided. A 35 cent bottle is the new size; but a 50 cent bottle is really the cheapest—it holds so much more.

gencies.

"Are we—do you think?"

"Oh, no; not a bit of danger of that," returned Brentwick hastily. "They'll not catch up with us this night. That is a very inferior car they have—so Charles says, at least—nothing to compare with this. If I'm not in error, there's the Crown and Miter just ahead. We'll make it, fill our tanks and be off again before they can make up half their loss."

Dorothy looked anxiously at Kirkwood, her lips forming an unuttered query—what did he think?

"Don't worry. We'll have no trouble," he reassured her stoutly. "The chauffeur knows undoubtedly."

None the less he was moved to stand up in the tenebrous, conscious of the presence of the traveling bag, snug between his feet, as well as of the weight of Calendar's revolver in his pocket, while he stared back along the road.

There was nothing to be seen of their persecutors.

The car continued to crawl. Five minutes dragged tediously. Gradually they drew abreast a tavern standing back a distance from the road. Sluggishly the car rolled up before it and came to a dead and silent halt. Charles, the mechanic, jumping out, ran hastily up the path toward the inn. In the car Brentwick turned again, his eyes curiously bright in the starlight, his forehead quaintly furrowed, his voice apologetic.

"It may take a few minutes," he said undecidedly, plainly endeavoring to cover up his own dark doubts. "My dear," to the girl, "if I have brought trouble upon you in this wise I shall never earn my own forgiveness."

"As if you could be blamed!" protested the girl. "You mustn't think of it that way. Fancy, what should we have done without you?"

"I'm afraid I have been very clumsy," sighed Brentwick, "clumsy and impulsive. Kirkwood, do you hear anything?"

"Not yet, sir."

"Perhaps," suggested Brentwick a little later—"perhaps we had better alight and go up to the inn. It would be more cozy there, especially if the petrol proves hard to obtain and we have long to wait."

"I should like that," assented the girl decidedly.

Kirkwood nodded his approval, opened the door and jumped out to assist her, then picked up the bag and followed the pair, Brentwick leading the way with Dorothy on his arm.

At the doorway of the Crown and Miter Charles met them, evidently seriously disturbed. "No petrol to be had here, sir," he announced reluctantly, "but the landlord will send to the next inn, a mile up the road, for some. You will have to be patient, I'm afraid, sir."

"Very well. Get some one to help you push the car in from the road," ordered Brentwick. "We will be waiting in one of the private parlors."

"Yes, sir. Thank you, sir." The mechanic touched the visor of his cap and hurried off.

"Come, Kirkwood." Gently Brentwick drew the girl in with him.

A rosy cheeked and beaming landlady met him in the corridor and, all bows and smiles, ushered him into a private parlor reserved for the party, immediately bustling off in a desperate hurry.

ate hurry to secure refreshments desired by Brentwick.

The girl had seated herself on one end of an extremely comfortable lounge and was making a palpable effort to seem at ease. Brentwick stood at one of the windows, shoulders rounded and head bent, hands clasped behind his back as he peered out into the night. Kirkwood dropped the traveling bag beneath a chair the farthest removed from the doorway and took to pacing the floor.

In a corner of the room a tall grandfather's clock ticked off ten interminable minutes. For some reason unconsciously delaying, the landlady did not reappear. Brentwick, abruptly turning from the window, remarked the fact quizzically, then drew a chair up to a marble topped table in the middle of the floor.

"My dear," he requested the girl, "will you oblige me by sitting over here? And, Philip, bring up a chair, if you will. We must not permit ourselves to worry, and I have something here which may perhaps engage your interest for awhile."

To humor him and alleviate his evident distress of mind they acceded. Kirkwood found himself seated opposite Dorothy. Suddenly Charles burst unceremoniously in, leaving the door wide open.

"Mr. Brentwick, sir," he cried gaily, "that other car!"

With a smothered ejaculation Kirkwood leaped to his feet, tugging at the weapon in his pocket. In another instant he had the revolver exposed. The girl's cry of alarm, interrupting the mechanic, fixed Brentwick's attention on the young man. He, too, stood up, reaching over very quickly to clamp strong, supple fingers round Kirkwood's wrist, while with the other hand he laid hold of the revolver and by a single twist wrenched it away.

Kirkwood turned upon him in fury. "So," he cried, shaking with passion, "this is what your hospitality meant! You're going to—"

"My dear young friend," interrupted Brentwick, with a flash of impatience, "remember that if I had designed to betray you I could have asked no better opportunity than when you were my guest under my own roof."

"But—hang it all, Brentwick," expostulated Kirkwood, ashamed and contrite, but worked upon by desperate apprehension, "I didn't mean that, but—"

"Would you have bullets flying when she is near?" demanded Brentwick scathingly. Hastily he slipped the revolver upon a little shelf beneath the table top. "Sir," he informed Kirkwood with some heat, "I love you as my own son, but you're a young fool, as I have been in my time and as I would to heaven I might be again! Be advised, Philip—be calm. Can't you see it's the only way to save your treasure?"

"Hang the jewels!" retorted Kirkwood warmly. "What?"

"Sir, who said anything about the jewels?"

As Brentwick spoke Calendar's corpulent figure filled the doorway; Stryker's weather worn features loomed over his shoulder, distorted in a cheerful leer.

INDIANA MINE BURNING

Strenuous Efforts Being Made to Extinguish Blaze.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 4.—A fire which, it is believed, was started by a windy shot fired Sunday afternoon, is burning in the Fairview mine of the Carlisle Coal and Clay company, just north of Carlisle. The blaze is sufficiently strong to stir the operators to vigorous measures in effort to subdue it. There are about thirty-five men employed at the mine when it is in operation, and they are working to extinguish the flames.

Mud Hole Saved Baby.

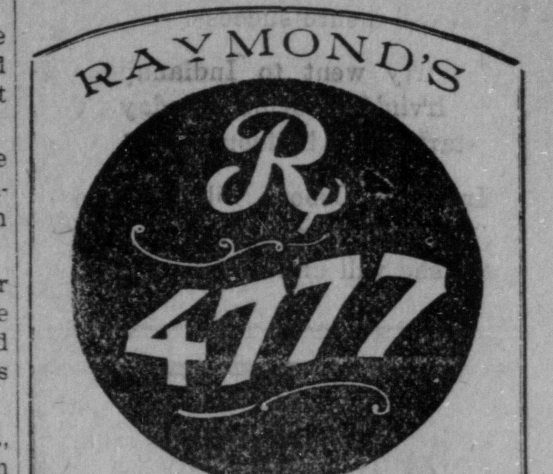

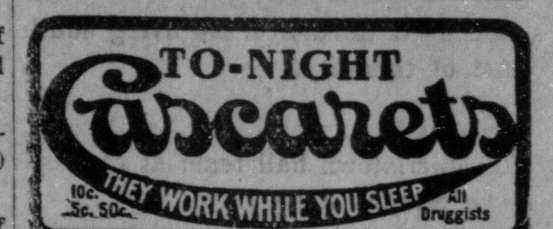

Oakland City, Ind., June 4.—Mrs. George Murray and Mrs. Hurt were thrown from a buggy in which they were driving and Mrs. Murray suffered serious if not fatal injuries. The harness broke and the horse ran away. While going at breakneck speed Mrs. Hurt with rare presence of mind threw her baby from the buggy into a large mud hole. The child was buried in the mud, but was uninjured.

Young Forger Sentenced.

Richmond, Ind., June 4.—Harry Clark, age twenty-two, entered a plea of guilty before Judge Fox in the circuit court to the charge of forgery and was sentenced to the reformatory for two to fourteen years. PHILADELPHIA'S CAR STRIKE ENDS

Men Gain Concessions and Go Back to Work.

LASTED A WEEK TO THE DAY

Beginning Last Saturday the Quaker City Had Put In a Week of Turbulence and Discomfort Owing to the Almost Continual Riots and the Interrupted Car Service.—The Men Returned to Work This Morning on a Ten-Hour Basis at 22 cents an Hour.

Philadelphia, June 5.—On a basis of a ten-hour day, the men to receive 22 cents an hour, the striking motormen and conductors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company resumed work this morning. After a series of conferences covering nearly all day yesterday, an agreement was reached between the company and the strike leaders which was last night ratified by the men, and cars began to run as usual this morning after just one week of interruption.

The termination of the trouble between the company and its employees was brought about primarily by State Senator James P. McNichol, the Republican leader of this city, at conferences yesterday with the traction officials and the strikers' representatives. The delegates chosen by the strikers met leader Pratt later in the day and discussed the proposition which had been made by the traction people. Some of the delegates insisted upon 25 cents per hour, while others thought 22 cents an hour and a ten-hour day was a fair compromise. After being in session nearly all day the men agreed to accept 22 cents an hour. The old "swing system" has been abolished; ten hours will constitute a day's work; all employees will be permitted to purchase their uniforms in the open market; all future differences are to be adjusted between the company and a grievance committee chosen by the employees. If after an investigation by the city controller of the books of the company it can be shown that more than 22 cents an hour can be paid without crippling the finances of the rapid transit company then the men will insist upon a further advance in wages.

The present strike has been the most complete tie-up ever experienced by local trolley companies, and the temper of the people was more violent than in the strike of 1895.

THE B. & O. STRIKE

Both Sides Express Satisfaction With Situation.

Baltimore, Md., June 5.—Both sides are apparently satisfied with the strike conditions in the shops along the line of the Baltimore & Ohio, inaugurated in the Mt. Clare shops, this city, in protest against the introduction of the piecework system. The railroad officials admit that the strike has extended to the shops at East Philadelphia and Keyser, W. Va., but say none of the men have quit work at the Riverside shops, this city. The strikers claim that all the men are out at Connelville, Newark, O., Newcastle Junction and Parkersburg, while the figures of the company indicate that only a part of the men have quit at these places.

TRADE WAITING

Legislative Action a Brake on Wheels of Progress.

New York, June 5.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says: "All in all the business situation presents many favorable features, but there is still an underlying feeling of conservatism. While less is heard of influence of tariff changes on future trade, there is still apparent a disposition to await the outcome of present action in legislative circles and a clearer view as to possible crop yields."

Emmerich Returned Home.

Indianapolis, June 5.—Max Emmerich, confessed defaulting bookkeeper at the Capital National bank, was returned to this city this morning from Jacksonville, Fla., in custody of a United States marshal. A TOUCHY BOY

Incensed at Playmate's Talk, He Calls Boy From Home and Kills Him.

Nashville, Tenn., June 5.—Sixteen-year-old Edgar Serber was called from his home in West Nashville and killed in the street by fifteen-year-old Jesse McPherson. The slayer used a repeating shotgun and fired twice, blowing off the top of his victim's head. McPherson, who is the son of Elder Joseph McPherson, a minister of the Church of Christ, was arrested shortly after the tragedy and is now confined at the police station. Talking of the tragedy he admitted that he went to Serber's home to kill him, saying that Serber had talked about him.

Some weeks ago the boys engaged in a fight, during which Serber, it is said, used a buggy whip on McPherson. Since then, each, it is said, had indulged in talk among companions about the other. Serber was sitting on the porch of his home talking to his aged father when McPherson summoned him to his death.

HENEY SPRINGS NEW SENSATION

Charges Calhoun With Manufacturing Evidence.

IN FAVOR OF HIS COMPANY

Long and Bitterly Fought Trial of Patrick Calhoun Takes on a New Interest When the Defendant is Charged by Prosecution With Being a Party to a Plot to Manufacture Evidence Favorable to Officials of the United Railroads.

San Francisco, June 5.—Charging that Patrick Calhoun was party to a plot to manufacture evidence favorable to officials of the United Railroads, Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Heney has introduced a new issue into the Calhoun bribery trial.

Samuel F. Scott, successively employed in confidential positions by the United Railroads, the Southern Pacific railway, and W. J. Burns, agent of the prosecution, was the witness making the charges. His testimony opened up one of the bitterest controversies of the long trial. Scott, who admitted that he had become an agent of the prosecution since the trial commenced, said he had been approached by Joseph H. Handlon, claim agent of the United Railroads, in 1907, and requested to repeat before Mr. Calhoun a story manufactured by Handlon.

Scott said Handlon asked him to tell Calhoun that he (Scott) had once been in the employ of Burns; that he had accompanied Rudolph Spreckels and Francis J. Heney in an automobile ride to a house, the location of which was not defined, and that Mr. Spreckels had watched through a transom the conduct of two men who entered an adjoining room. The witness said he had been asked to tell Mr. Calhoun that Mr. Spreckels had subsequently joined the two men and departed with them.

Stanley Moore, attorney for the defense, who conducted the cross-examination of Scott, admitted that the story of the witness was no surprise to the defense, but insinuated, by his questions, that Scott had originated the narrative and tried in vain to sell it to the defense, after which he entered the employ of the prosecution.

He spoke feelingly of the recent death of H. H. Rogers. "It is sad, very sad," he said.

NEGLECT OF PENN'S GRAVE.

Americans Shocked at Weeds Which Almost Hide Inscription.

American tourists who recently paid a pilgrimage to the grave of William Penn at Chalfont, St. Giles, Buckinghamshire, twenty odd miles from London, England, have been hurt by the neglected condition of the resting place of the founder of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Walter Lindley of Los Angeles, Cal., is highly indignant at what he describes as the disgraceful manner in which Penn's grave is kept.

"If such little reverence is going to be paid by Englishmen to Penn's resting place," said Dr. Lindley, "we Americans must take the great American colonizer's bones to Pennsylvania and raise a fitting monument to them."

"Jordan's burial ground is a small, rough inclosure at the back of the Friends' Meeting house at Chalfont, St. Giles. It is a delightfully picturesque spot, appropriated to the sepulcher of Quakers, but no longer used. Here, I thought, as I entered the consecrated ground, is just the place that the simple hearted Quaker might have chosen for his last long sleep, but you may judge of my feelings when I found that Penn's grave was all but unmarked! Only a small stone distinguishes the grave from others. Weeds and rank grass almost obliterated the inscription."

There are one thousand motor cars registered in Bombay, and not one of them is of American make.
